announcement.

The efforts to reorganize, which are so full of promise, certainly meet with the approbation of every man who has the financial and commercial interests of the county at heart, and it is a testimonial of the strongest type of the confidence of the business public has in the commercial and industrial features of this section of the State. It is an achievement that will not only restore fully the standing Clarksburg had in the financial world, but strengthens that standing. A business that not only recovers from an embarrassment, but widens its influence and makes itself larger is certainly one that has made itself stronger and one that brings triumph to its neighborhood.

That the closing of the bank affected business in large degree there are none to deny and that it brought gloom over the community there is not the slightest question, and, were it not for other fortunate situations, and more particularly had it not been for the assurance that the bank would resume, conditions would have been bad in a commercial way and there would have been considerable more stagnation, but every one had faith in the ultimate and exercising that faith those who were dependent in business ways upon the institution went patiently along the best they knew how and did the best they could. In this they did most remarkably and there was, so far as is known, remarkable recuperation and quite speedy at that. But with all this perseverance and extra effort, failure to have reopened the institution, which for years was among the leading of its kind in the county and even in the State, would have brought on injury that would have been keenly felt for years to come.

All in all, the day the stockholders met and decided to increase the capital stock and reorganize the bank marks an important movement in the history of Clarksburg and there are none who do not rejoice over the events of that day and who do not earnestly desire that the plans formulated may not be successfully carried out. There is behind the reorganization men of means, splendid business sense, and conservative and safe methods. They are men whose identification with any business enterprise or financial institution guarantees safety, and in the case of the Traders, there is every assurance that its future will be eminently successful and that depositors can well feel that their deposits are perfectly safe, and the business public will have the confidence essential to the success of the institution.

Oh, my! Oh, me!
Just wait and see!

The alleged Citizens' ticket will not even support itself. Some of them are already talking about knifing one another. S'pose they have got it into their heads that they are going to join the procession. Good boys! Come right along with us! Climb in the band wagon and be merry!

Oh, my! Oh, me!
They all did see!

The alleged Citizens' organ, that of the star-chamber, announces that it has become a martyr for that ticket. Exactly, what we said. It virtually admits it has thrown the Democratic party overboard. What plainer would any one want than its own claim about being a martyr?

Oh, my! Oh, me!
All remember, eh!

Mr. Are You Next begs to acknowledge receipt of a lengthy reply from Mr. R. U. True.

Oh, my! Oh, me!
It was the fee!

Oh, my! Oh, me!
It was a case of dirty with me.

Oh, my! Oh, me!
It was he they had to see.

Oh, my! Oh, me!
They all do see!

Oh, my! Oh, me!
Not good enough for me!

Oh, my! Oh, me!
All for him, none for me!

Oh, my! Oh, me!
He skinned me!

Oh, my! Oh, me!
Say all we, but he said dirty.
